AHT MEETINGS: A BREATH OF FRESH AIR

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA - Summer 2007 -- "Give Your Meetings A Breath of Fresh Air" is a slogan meeting planners can embrace when booking Alaska Heritage Tours family of lodges and cruise tours. With team building activities, such as geocaching and glacier hikes, well appointed lodges with staff ready to meet every need, and Alaska's majestic mountains, ancient glaciers and lush forests as a backdrop, meeting planners are well poised to deliver a successful meeting.

Talkeetna Alaskan Lodge, set on 650 wilderness acres just 113 mile north of Anchorage, Alaska's largest city, accommodates corporate retreats, board meetings and small meetings for up to 200 delegates. Four meeting rooms range from 952 to 1,272 square feet and audio/visual equipment is available. Two restaurants, a viewing deck and well-stocked lounge provide a wide range of dining options and a spectacular view of North America's tallest peak, Mount McKinley, and the Susitna, Chulitna and Talkeetna River Valleys. Comfortable seating areas are scattered throughout the complex provide an opportunity to catch up with friends or review strategy before the next session.

Seward Windsong Lodge, nestled in a scenic glacial river valley with expansive panoramas of Resurrection River Valley just 126 miles south of Anchorage, accommodates up to 125 delegates. Two meeting rooms range from 600 to 1,800 square feet, with the larger offering river valley views from large picture windows. Restaurant specialties include Alaska cuisine, burgers and house made, herb-crusted pizzas. From the deck, guests enjoy a spectacular view along with appetizers, Alaska ale, or other beverage.

Prince William Sound Glacier Cruises and Kenai Fjords Tours offer an array of fully accessible marine vessels, providing a unique venue for a special session or networking opportunity. Break out of the boardroom for a session or an exclusive meal in a remote wilderness setting on Fox Island, just 12 nautical miles from Seward.

Alaska Heritage Tours expert sales and events team will work with meeting planners to create a uniquely Alaska meeting that will be a treasured memory for years to come.
